Described by a Traveler From the East as a Very Unique Village.

A Sanctified Tewn of Kantucky-Inez. Under this caption the NEWS publishes a very reudable article from The Kontucklan, an illustrated monthly. It originally uppeared in Travel Magazine, in July 1913. Inez was spoken of as the only village in the mountain county of Martin, and where religion is the dominant interest of life, The article as it appeared in The Kentucklan is well llustrated with pictures of Inez and its streets, made from original photographs. The author of the sketch, Albert Buell, The was a close observer and evidently speaks of things as he saw them, but his deductions made from his observations are another matter.

The munotony of civilization has made such inroads upon the American people that few places remain to us where life, being different, appears to be romantic. Two places there are, however, wehre, within easy reach from New York, you can step utterly out of today and come in contact with a life that has not changed these hundred years, and with communities where still persists the pure blooded Anglo-Saxon practically unmixed with other races. Often has it been said that we, as a people, are no longer akin to our English accounters. akin to our English ancestors, but be-come another and a cosmopolitan nation, because the blood of other rnees comes with each generation to llow more and more withia our veins. But on the eastern shore of Maryland, where the rallroads have not reached Proposition Made to Establish the settlements, back along the deeply indented shores of the Nanilcoke and the Choptank, and in the mountain counties of eastern Kentucky, the Anglo-Saxon descendants of Anglo-Saxon furbears still live in the simplicity of their father's marriage has beenamong themselves and immigration has passed them by. 1. is no unusual thing for mea to be living today upon the homestead lands their great-grand-fathers cleared; and, in the main, the point of view, the attitude toward life and the customs of that life have changed but little with the years. It is, therefore, entirely possible, if you want to know what American life was like in the Eighteenth Century, to find out by actual experience.

These folk of the Chesapeako and other mountains not only keep the an-clent ways, but their very speech is an early English that is spoken nowhere bring from 50 to 75 men to this place else in America, and perhups heard but rurely even in England itself. Mixed the language of every day are words and ldloms of Shakespeare's tlme, and that hark back even to Chaucer.

The settlements in the East repre ment a higher social life. Here are old manors in stately parks, and a certain form and fashlon very charming in its Old World suggestion. The settlements In the mountains tell another story, the time when the settlers on the Eastern Shore were already ilvlng a life of comparativo ease, and of a cer tain luxury the long line of migration was being pushed across the Appala-chair ranges. It was a hard road and a long road that led onward across Kentucky summits. Along the way the less efficient ones would, one by one, drop out; a broken axie, a sick child, discouragement-all cluimed the passer-by, and where the travelers paused, there they stayed. The more fortunate pushed on down Into the and became the aristocracy of lingered on the hills became the uncestors of the Kentucky mountaineers.

life adjusted to the same traditions, Eastern Kontucklans and d.mmon. But there is this difference: Aloag the Chesapcake life is simple, It is simple, strenuous and hard; but in both places it is the life of another century. John Fox knows these mounpeople better than does aayono else, and he says of them;

They are a race whose descent is annixed English, upon whose ager words and forms of speech that Shakespeare heard and used. . . BIG DAY FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

in Louisa and the State,

The proclamation of Governor Mc-Creary calling on the people of this Commonwealth to observe May 3rd as 'Go to Sunday School Sunday" was very generally observed throughout tho State. One million was the attendance asked for, and while complete returns have not been mude it is beleved that the attendance exceeded this large number.

Weather conditions in Louisa were ldeal last Sunday and the Suaday School attendance, generally large, was much increased. The grand total was 622, made up as follows: From Candidates for Congress and Ualted the M. E. South, Augustus Snyder, Supt., 268; from M. E., R. C. McClure, Supt., 150; from the Baptist, Fred See, Supt., 125; and from the Christlan, C. B. Wellman, Supt., 79.

So far as the NEWS caa learn there was no special programme of exercises observed at any one At the South Methodist schools. Prof. Kenulson, the teacher of the Men's Bible Class, occupied the time usually taken by the classes by glvng a splendid exposition of the lesson for the duy, the parable, or, us the Professor culls It, the allegory of the Prodigul Son, with the accent on the word prodigui. The subjects treated of ln the allegory-sia, conviction, bellef, repontance, obedleace — were handled in excollent style by Prof. Kennlson, making his exposition u rmon in itself.

CLEAN-UP" DAYS IN

THE MINING TOWNS.

Charleston, W. Va., May 4.-People lviag in those cities and large towns of West Virgiala, where plaas are be-ing made for a "Clean-up Day," will have no reason, whea it is all over, to think they are a bit more progressive, or have any finer clvlc spirlt and pride than the residents of many of the mining villages of the State, because "Clean-up Day" will be observed ta the smaller communities, as well as in the citles

Operators and miners have taken up the idea which was intended pri-marily for the big cities. As a matter of fact, the ladications are that "Clean-up Day" will be observed better in the mining villages than la any All Records for Attendance Broken of the cities, because in the mining After Continued Improvement, a Change the spirit of the occasion, while in the cities, alas, "everybody" is not interested.

Then, too, the fact that the miners live in smaller communities makes it possible to do the work more thoroughly, and when "Clean-up Day" is over it will be found that those mining villages, where it has been observed, will shine like aew pins, and will be object lessons to the more pretentlous citles.

Both mlners and operators are taking up the idea, and are entering heartlly into the spirit of the occasion just as quickly as the matter hrought to their attention. Rivalry among several of the camps in a given locality will do much la making the obscrvance of the day a decided suc cess.

There is no happiness in an idle woman. It may be with hand, it may have no engagements to call them up work she must, or be wretched for in the morning, who, once having risever. The little girls of our families the dull forenoon in slippers down at course of our American society is that the heel and with disheveled hair, our young women are taught that the reading the last novel, and who, having dragged through a wretched forething in their life is to get someone to and having spent an hour and a hall take care of them. Instead of that, at their toilet pick up their card case the first lesson should be how, under and go out to make calls, and who God, they may take care of them-pass their evenings waiting for somejority of them do have to take care of notony. Arabella Stuart never was themselves and that, too, after having, imprisoned in so dark a dungeon as through the false notions of their parents, wasted in the year in which they ought to have learned how successfully to maintain themselves. We now and here declare the inhumanity, cruelty, and outrage that father and mother who pass their daughters into vomanhood, having given them no facility for earning their iivelihood. Mme. de Stael said, "It is not these writings that I am proud of, but the fact that I have facility in ten occupations, in any one of which I could make a livelihood.

A WORD TO WIVES AND MOTHERS

Keep in advance of your boys and girls. Be prepared to lead them, and do not, as you value your husband's love, allow him to develop and im-prove while you lose your hold upon those things which contribute largely to a woman's attractiveness.

I see about me every day sisters who, when they married, were, I haven't a doubt, intellectually equal, if not superior to the men with whom they east their iot. In some occuit fashion they drift apart.

A man in daily contact with bright minds, in his traveling, thinking planning, reading, unconsciously awny from the woman of his choice unless she is in turn keen witted enough to make up her mind that this shall not be the case.

A man likes at night, when he puts on his slippers and settles down for a smoke to discuss the topics of the moment and not babies and the de-iniquencies of the cook. Where one woman can do this, a dozen would be utterly at sea if an attempt were nade to lure them away from them, to them always fascinating themes, kitchen and nursery.

Be wary lest your devotion to sewing machine, bread board, and proom, you allow blessed opportunities for self culture to slip by, until you find yourself a target for somebody's commiseration.

A mistaken notion ties women down to petty details, when many precious would elevate and reline.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY,

These are the things worth while: The rainbow after the rain: The peaco that follows pain;

The dew-dipped garden rose; The slowers that by the wayside

To cialm an urchin's smile The little socrifices made

By patient mother-love; The touch of little children's hands; And sweet affection's subtle bands.

The bright sunshine above; The chord of music that awakes, Yearning for nobler things.

These, and a trusting woman's love, In life arc most worth while, -Verne Dewitt Itoweli ln Nautllus

Labor is life, but worry is killing.

Accept things as they are, and do not bother about the yesterday, which is gone forever; do not bother about tomorrow, which is not yours; but take the present day and make the best of

Some horrid man says: "A woman can adopt herself to circumstances more readily than a man. She will drive a nail with a poker or a halr brush, take out a cork with the scissors, no matter if it is pushed in, and sharpen lead pencils with her husband's razors.'

Young man, you are wanted. From the street corners, from the saloous, and playhouses, from the loafer's rendezvous, from the idier's promenade, turn your steps into the highway of noble aim and earnest work. There are prizes chough for every successful worker, crown enough for overy honorable head that goes through the smoke of conflict to victory.

G. W. CASTLE FOR COMMONWEALTH'S ATTORNEY.

G. W. Castle, of Lawrence county, announces his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealths Attorney for the 32nd Judicial District, primary election in August 1915, cornestly requesting the support of all Democrats of the district.

Some specimens of feminine headgear this spring are odd looking conglomerates, but when we see them on some people we are struck with the eternal fitness of things.

There are some newspapers, alleged Democratic, and some of them in Ker,tucky, toe, who have never forgiven Wilson for making a splendid President. They are, therefore, against him, no matter what he does.

If the doctors pull John Mayo through, they ought to lay aside ethics long enough to let the newspapers say some nice things about them and their skill, In the way of unpaid advertisements.- Hopkinsville the gallaxy of greatness Kentucky has ever been the premier. Look back and see premier. Look back and see Henry Clay, think of the eloquence of the Marshalls, all of them inspired of God, then take a look at the loyalty and lionheartedness of "Old Bob," the divine Robert J. Breckenridge, father of William Cabell Preston, tongued orator." Alas Kentucky is not reproducing that grand array of tal-ent. But we may maintain our supremacy for statesmanships hy cleeting James B. McCreary to the United States Senate. He comes of the same sturdy and honest stock as Beck and "Old Bob," all hell couldn't make him go wrong, and as a Congressman he accomplished more than any member. Kentucky is a proud State, as before intimated and we must try and keep up her dignity. Beck was a Scotchman and unless we are woefully mistaken James B. McCreary is Scotcii-Irish, which means above everything that he will stick to the interests of his constituents despite every influence. We must nominate a candidate who can win, and the fact that he overcame a Republican majority of 18,000 and was elected by 31,000 would indicate that he is the logical candidate.- Hazel Green Herald.

Ten miles to lnez! Up among the mountains, through great forests, by pleturesque rocks, fording hridgeless streams and over the worst and roughest and most adorable road in the world, you come upon the valley where Inez walts. There are few carriages in use, and there can be but few in use on roads like these. Everyone rides horseback or on a mule and the old time saddle bags are in frequent use. Often a man would pass us with a rifle laid across the saddle, for game and feuds are plentiful.

The only buildings along the road are log cahins with an outside chimney of stone and plaster. Occasionally these are built with a rough board porch in front, and the rooms Inside are floored with plank; many have no floor but the ground, and are often without glazed windows, a solid wooden shutter closing the opening. Hogs are anywhere, running in the roads and not infrequently in and out of the single room that forms the interior of the single room that forms the interlor of the cubin. Lean-faced women stand in the door, generally surrounded by a group of tow-headed children, and almost aiways smoking a long cob pipe. In the dooryard, resting on some stones, is a big iron kettle, in which is done the family washing, a fire being kindled underneath. From the well, close at hand, a long sweep draws the moss-covered bucket. Everywhere is poverty, sometimes revolting in its squalier, but everywhere s a kindliness that redeems it.

These are a short-lived people. You ee girls of fifteen, pretty and attraelive; but they marry young, most of them while in their teens, and fade quickly. Indeed, one of the most impressive things about this mountain ife is the absence of the middle-aged woman, who elsewhere is so prominent soelally. You see only girls and old A woman of thirty passes for women. old, and looks like a woman of sixty. It seems a mistake to send missionaries, as is being done, to these mounain people. They are better Christians, collectively, than we are; charltable, earnest, faithfully keeping every commandment except the sixth. But what they need is someone to come among them and teach them the laws of health. Outside of lnez 1 did not notiee a single well so placed as to be and ventilation is simply appalling. Hundreds of people will crowd a little church for hours, with every breath of air excluded, and their school houses human hyenas In Mexico Clty who are air-tight. In the winter the windowless huts are simply death-traps. As a result of these conditions consumption and typhoid make fearful inroads, and the pathetic and misdirect-ed efforts of the people to escape from A girl stepped out and joined him is these diseases only ndd to the mortality they seek to avoid. Nowhere is there a greater sale for patent cough medicines and various nostrums. One family soid all the mineral rights in their land to a Chicago thrm for teal years' supply of pills, and every home has a shelf on which stands a row of various medicines, continually resorted to. The climate is superb, the soll in the vaileys fertile, the people religious, kindiy and entirely capable of education-all that is lacking is an influence, necessarily from the outside, that will make their lives more comfortable. They've plenty of religion;

what they need is sanitation. lnez itseif is a little white-washed viliage inuggied in a valley and guarded by great hilis. There are two or three rambling streets and a shady square where the fall and courthouse stand, as well as three tiny one-story buildings-oifices of the attorneys who constitute the har of Martin county. This square is enclosed by a fence, and is entered by two stiles. In one eorner is the town well, and in one of the trees hangs the court house beil. Along the fence many mules and horses are always tied.

The hotel, which is not far away, and the meals-which, by the were served by the editor of the local weekly newspaper-were the best 1 ever ate in a place so remote, game of all kinds being on the table in abundance. From the current Issue of that newspaper I clipped the official notice of an adjoining county, herewith literally reproduced, it tells better than many words of description the condi-

It is hard for us, whose interests are so varied, to realize how religion 1s factor of their lives. Bible classes and prayer meeting are advertised by posters tacked on telegraph poles and Hats Pins of any desired length at displayed in the windows, as we advertise political meetings. On Sunday morning the hetel proprietor advised me to eat heartily. "Why?" said I. "Well," was his reply, "we don't let anything interfere with God's worship. We don't serve meals while church is going on, and today being special, I reckon there won't be no dinner till about five o'clock." And there wasa't!

One day, when I returned late in the nfternoon from Wolf-a tiny settlement still farther back in the mountains-I noticed a great many mules and horses tied to the court house fence. On inquiring the reason, I was told, "Yes, there are a right smart lot of folk over at the church, where they're funeralizing the McCrays.' (For obvious reasons 1 am not giving the correct name.) On asking what funeralizing meant, it was explained to me that when a death occurred in a family whose home was ln the distant coves far up the mountains, it was impossible to take the body to a church or even to get a minister to be present at the burial, which took place at the homestead. In this way the eustom has developed of walting until a number of deaths have occurred, and then at some convenient time, inviting ail the ministers in the county to he present and n general memorial service for the family dead, or "funeralizlng.' i missed the afternoon service, but

A tali strong faced young man began to preach. Gradusliy his voice rose hlgher, and became a shrill monotone that, with scaree infection or pause swept along, a perfect torrent of words -an almost incoherrent stream of Biblical quotations, interrupted by an "Oh, yes, ah: oh, yet, a-a-h," ns he caught his breath. The muscles of his arms and hunds were tense, teetered up and down, and the piercing voice thrilled on. The people seemed faseinated by the sound, and leaned forward, their eyes upon him On and on swept that monoteaous voice. A woman began to sob. Suddealy he dropped his voice to a conversational tone, as if he had let go of the strings that held them, the people collapsed and settled back in their seats; in the quiet that followed you could hear the spitting of tobacco juice upon the floor all over the church Then a hymn was called for, and another. Suddenly a tail young man leaped to his feet and cried above the music, "Glory to God." "Come forward, free from pollution, and the disregard brother, come forward," shouted the of the commonest laws of cleanliness prencher. April 22.-Wiftinm Bayard Ilaie, investigator of affairs In Mexico has contributed to the forth coming number of the World's Work an article upholding the President's Mexican policy and pointing out an important development in the character of American diplomacy.

"The press and the people of Amer lca," he says, "have not yet heen awakened to the fact that the first year of the Wilson Administration has given new characte United among the Powers of the world. Hefore Mr. Wilson had heen in office a year the Powers of other continents had yielded to the principles of our domination in the Western Hemisphere. It speak of our moral empire

"Our Moral Empire In America" is the title of the article.

Discussing the possibility of intervention in Mexico (the article was written hefore the fleet was ordered to Tampico), Dr. Hale says:

"An American army would have no physical difficulty in getting back out of Mexico. Nohody would use it up before it got away. The difficulty would be that greed and a false sense of national honor would do their titmost to keep us there permanently in occupation."

"We do not want Mexico," he deciares. Especially we do not want her be cause we do want the good will of the rest of Latin America, It would be a fool's act, indeed, to barter the confidence of a hemisphere for all we could gain by annexing Maxico,

The trouble with Central America, Dr. ifaie asserts, is its proclivity for revolution. But, he says, most Centrai America revolutions are "promoted" from Europe in a regular way of is promoted in America. The duty of the United States is to scrutinize each revolution by itself and to judge whether It be or not 'morally just-

"in the case of Mexico judgment was easy," says Hale, "The comp d'etat that overthrow Madero in February, 1913, was in no way a revolution. SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

The time has arrived for all the

Sunday Schools that closed for the winter to be opened up and with a determination on the part of the leaders, 'especially, to not let them stop for winter again. I sincerely hope such will be the determination and efforts will be put forth to that end. But just now we want to work, we must work not only to open up the sleeping schools, but to make those better, more efficient than ever before Sunday School people, superintendents teachers, pupils, preachers, anyone won't you work as never before to make more and better schools? The Lord's work is important, so iet's be up and doing. Right soon I shall send out the report blanks and I beg of you to fill out these blanks as best you can (if It is not possible to give an exact record from any cause), fill it as best you can and return to me. If you read the information given a week the people, irrespective of party; that or two ago in the Big Sandy News, and I hope you did, on Sunday Schools being nearer clean than they have the State S. THE KISS STEALER

He Was Very Adroit In His Thefts

By F. A. MITCHEL

The rallroad, like everything else, is a development. The first rails were strap iron on wooden beams. The first car was n stagecoach, then several stagecosches together mounted on wheels. Then came the passenger car of the present day, only much smaller. When these cars were pulled through a tunnel the passeagers were left in total darkaess. Indeed, the lighting of railwsy cars passing through tuanels is a feature of recent years.

When Tom Arnold was about to return to college for his sophomore year he was asked if be would escort a little girl who was going in the same direction to boardiag school. Tom didn't like being burdened with the care of a "little girl," but he couldu't very well decline. When he saw his charge he didn't mind taking care of her so much as he had thought he would. Lucy Atwood was fourteen years old, but tall enough for s girl of sixteea. She was very demure and sppeared to be utterly devoid of conversational powers. Her protector, having reached the advanced age (to her) of eighteen, probably filled her with such awe as to prevent conversation with him.

But if Miss Atwood was tongue tied she was very pretty. There is nothing more delicate, to a young man especially, than n pair of pink coral lips. Lucy's complexion was as soft and downy as a peach, and her lips were n combination of heautiful curves. Tom couldn't keep his eyes off them. He was young and n sophomore in college, a combination that can occur but once in a man's life. His thoughts, his nrguments, therefore were sophomoric:

"I have been burdened with the care of a toague tled kid without recompense. It behooves me to look out for my own reward. I don't know sny payment that would sult me better than just one kiss of those lips. In haif an honr we'll get to the tuanel. It requires three minutes for a train to go through it, and one csa do a great deal in three minutes."

This was the basis of a plan Tom formed. Before reaching the tunnel he would go into another car, first noting the exact position of bis charge. As soon as the trnin plunged into darknesa he would re-enter, make his way to where Lucy snt, take the kiss and retire. Some time after the train had emerged into the light he would go back to his seat, yawn, take np a newspaper and begin to read as if unconscious of nnything eventful having happened. It was a very pretty scheme, but more tempting to a youngster of eighteen than to n full fledged man. Thero Tom didn't like. The kid had been placed in his care, and be didn't consider it quite honorable to avail himself of the situation to take what didn't belong to him. But the more criminsi the act, the more horror uttached to being found ont, the more attractive

Tom sat looking sideways at those lips, hefore which every vestige of honor faded. Nevertheless as the train approached the tunnel his conrage began to fall him. What an awful thlag for him to do! But how nice! Suppose the girl should scream and some one should grab hlm! The very thought gave him the shivers. But he was at an age when the greater the risk the greater the temptation. Ho fell, and great was the fall thereof.

He had often heen through the tunnel and knew the approaches well. Some ten minutes before the train reached it he told his charge that he would go into the smoking car for a while if she didn't mind sitting nione. She said she didn't, and Tom, having noted that the seat was the third one from the door on the right, left the He didn't smoke, fearing that the odor of tohacco would give him away. He sat looking out through a window, n prey to numerous emotions. When the train entered the tunnel, enmmoning nil bis resolution, he hurried into the car he bad left and counted the seats on the right hy putting a hand on each till he came to the seat required. Folding Lucy in bls arms, he took the desired kiss. There was a smothered cry, followed in a few moments by the sound of an opening aud closing door, then no other than the rattling of the train. When duvlight came again several passengers who sat near Lucy looked in her direction for an explanation of the cry they had heard. She gave no Indication of anything unusual. She was wiping the dust from her face with her hundkerchief. She would remove a portion of it, look at the smudge It had made on her hundkerchief, then rub off some more, scrutinizing it also, esnecially in one corner. Some twenty minutes after the train had left the tunnel Tom Arnold eumo back and sat down beside his charge. Had Lucy looked him in the face she would surely have seen signs of guilt which, despite his efforts, he was unable to couceal, but she was looking out through the window and did not give him a glance. Tom was delighted with the success Me scheme to was not the kiss the hedge.

that pleased him, for to have enjoyed that he should have been lutent upon It rather than on committing a robbery. It was the fact that he had carried out his scheme without having been detected. He woadered that Lucy made no mention of the stolen kiss, but a very young and delicate miss might feel ahashed at communicating such a thing to a young man.

When the journey was ended and Tom left his charge at the door of ber school he looked scrutinizingly into her eyes to see if he could detect any evidence of her suspecting him. She returned his gaze with n childlike simplicity that renssured him, and ho left her feeling very comfortable.

One June morning, when the trees, the flowers and especially the roses were in bloom, a young man who had heen invited to spend a week end at the country place of a frieud sauntered out on the veranda in negligee summer costnme, plucked a rose, saiffed it, pnt it in the buttonhole of his finnnel coat, descended the steps and strolled about the grounds. Having examined the tennis court, the stables and other features of the place, he snnutered toward a hedge, which was just the height to enable him to look over lt. In the adjoining grounds was a pagoda, in the pagodn a hammock and in the hammock a femlaine figure. But whether the lady was old, middle uged or young he could not see. He thought he would like to satisfy himself on this point. Walking hack and forth along the hedge, he looked for an opening. At length, flading a place where the bedge was thiuner than at others and stooping, he wormed his way through, though when he reached the other side his costnme was somewhat disarraaged.

Brushlag off the dirt and straightenlng the baag of his clothlag, he sauntered toward the pagods. There was ao movement of the figure in the hammock, and, the morning belag warm, he fancied the occupant might be asleep. He had uo husiness lu the grounds. but he was a venturesome fellow, with ao eud of resource and assursace, and had an excuse rendy in case he met sny one. Drawing gradually nesrer to the pagoda, be flually reached a point near enough for him to see a lady ssleep la the hammock. She was young-about twenty-and fair to look upon. She seemed to be sleeping so soundly that the young man drew nearer, even to the steps of the pagoda. There was something in the faco of the sleeper that seemed familiar to him. He thought that he had seen her before, then that he had not, vibrating between these two opinlons, at last deciding that he had not, One feature especially charmed himthe lady had a very kissable mouth.

For a young man to stand looking at a young lady asleep with a kissable mouth is daagerons-act so dangerons to the young lady as the young man, for there is certainly no harm in one being kissed who doesn't know of the fsct. But the young maa taking that which does not belong to him is liable to the consequences of his rash act. Then suppose the lady is awakened by the process! Such a contingency would naturally strike terror luto any sensi-

The watcher drew nearer and nearer on tiptoe till he reached the hammock, then, hending over the sleeper, in one was one thing about it, however, that of the alternate risings and hendings finally lightly touched the lips with his. The sleeper slumbered on. Not a mus cle twitched. The young man was tempted to take unother, hat suddenly the abyss on which he stood occurred to him, and, turning, he tiptoed away to the opening of the hedge and passed through. Then he began to wonder at the recklessaess, the folly, the awfulness of what he had done.

When he untied his scarf at dressing for dinner that same evening he missed a stickpin surmonnted with a horseshoe that he had worn during the day. He wondered how and where he had lost it. Then he remembered working his way through the hedge. He must bave dropped it there. He was tempted to go ont and look for It, but he had barely time to dress for dinaer, so he must needs put off the search till morn-

When he went down to dinner whom should be see but the girl be had kissed In the hammock. He wus selzed with a terrible fright, but on being presented to her she gave no evidence whatever of ever having seen, met or heard of him before. He was assigned to her for a dinner companion, and by the time they were seated at table he had regained enough of his equanimity to remark that it had been a very bot day, that he hoped it would be cooler tomorrow and that he feared the summer would be an oppressive one.

However, the lady made it easy for him by being agreeable, and he gradually forgot that If she knew how he had rohled her she would despise him. After dinner the company strolled out on to the vcrauda and spent the evening under the moonlight amid the fragrance of roses. The tlilef of the klss quite recovered from any qualms of conscience and was glad he had done It, especially since the girl had not mwakened. On Monduy the young man took an early truln to the city. When the postman arrived during the afternoon he brought a small package addressed te Thomas Arnold, Esq. Opening it, the recipient took out a hundkerchief, in one corner of which were his initials and a slickpin with a horseshoe mount-

THE POPULAR VEILS.

Colored Lining Gives Chic to the Nev French Fabrica.

The latest beauty veli is made of flae black slik spider web net and fined with fiesh pink tulle. Two largo patches made of black veivet are plueed at suitable points, one to fall at the coraer of the left eye and the other st the eoruer of the mouth. This is a specially becoming veil, flattering to the complexion and very comfortable to wesr.

Another beauty vell which is a great favorite in Paris ts made of pale heliotrope net nad dotted with a couple of black patches. On fair complexious hellotrope tuile is very effective. The same may be said of cobweb tuile in a pale shade of lemon yellow.

For ordinary wear the fuvorite veil is that made of flue black slik tnile and dotted all over with white pin spots. Pale rose tnile dotted with white is also admirably becoming, and for women who go in for looking snart one can recommend the new velis in electric blue tulle dotted with black and white pin spots and finished with black velvet putches.

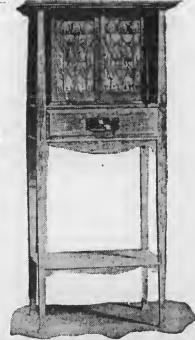

A great deal depeads upon the vell. Some of these lengths of fine thile are real heantifiers. Others merely make the skin look hard or coarse. It is n cupital idea to stick to one particular style of vell when it has been found to be becoming.

ARTISTIC FURNISHINGS.

A Dainty Receptacle For Music Books

The charming music cabinet illustrated may be carried out in any wood that sults the taste. It is one of the new art designs. The doors are fitted with pressed glass on which is a conventionnized crocus pattera. The sheets of music may be filed inside the cablact and music hooks placed on the shelf underneath. A cablnet of this sort would be a convenient receptacle for the rolls from the autematic piano or the records of the phonograph.

The very latest ilbrary and living room sets are beautiful examples of conventionalized orientalism in coloring and design. Studying those em-

Children's Hats.

Straw hats of all sorts will be worn by children, but slik hats will be worn, too, and straw and slik will be comhined. One popular hat shows a straw brim of tan elilp, with a crown of darker crepe de chine. Three little feather hirds of brown and yellow are arranged lightly on the right side of the struw bund that holds in the fullness of the slik puff at the bottom. Two of the birds are on slik covered fashion above the duluty but.

Chins's Peerless iron Mine. Chinn's famous iron mine, the Tayea, the foremost in the far east, is especially notable for the ease with which It is worked. It stands peerless in the world in this respect, excavation requiring no machine power. The work is done by hand by the Chinese coolles. The mine is reputed to be inexhaustihle in its ore. In the days of the "three kingdoms" the locality formed a theater of bloody fighting, and the viciaity abounds in relies of that memorable period in Chinese history. It is about 3.630 Chinese miles from Peking overland and about 4.080 Chinese miles by wuter. Tuyehhslen is traversed by ranges of hills and mountains, the vnileys of which abound in innumerable lakes of all sizes, with wuter course facilities. Consequently the locality is rich in scenery of great beauty, and the Chinese poets from olden times have never tired of singing of the 'eight views' of Tayeh. In the neighborhood of the Tuyeh iron mine are found the ruins of ancient iron fouudries, probably 1.000 years old. Millions of tons of sing lie in hcaps.

Settled the Question.

In Regensburg, in the middle ages the headsman died and three applicauts presented themselves for tho post. A test of their skill would settie the uniter. Accordingly three eriminals were brought forth for sinnghter.

The first headsman nude with his sword a tiny nick in the first criminal's "l'll lop him off just there," he said, and, swinging his sword round with a great swishing sound, to! he did ss he had said he would.

The second hendsman tled a string round his criminal's neck. "I'll cut off his head and bisect the string," he sald. And he did as he had promised.

These two first headsmen now began to study and ponder the neck of the third criminal, asking what proof of skill the third headsman should undertake, when the latter with one vast and splendld sword sweep cut off all three heads, thus finishing the crimiaal aad his rivnis together and wianing the hendsmunship of Hegensburg amid the applanse of all.

Harvard's First Building.

No man now living ean describe as an eyewitness the crudities of Harvard's tirst building, where the ground floor was devoted to acudemic uses, religious and literary exercises and the purpose of refectory, kitchen and huttery, while above were students' quarters, mere cells of the rudest sort.

The building was far from weather proof, and more air than light was ndmitted by the windows, which were only partly gluzed, olied paper serving elsewhere to let in a few of the sua's rays and keep ont the "coarsest of the coid," as Artenns Ward said whea he hung an old hoopskirt over his chamber window at the country hostelry In mldwlater.

Not even the most rudimentary of table equipment was supplied at the college eating room. - His own kaife and fork were carried by each student whea he went to dinner, and after he had finished he wiped them on the tahiecloth.—Dial.

Wasp Waisted Cretans.

In describing the civil guards at Canea, Mr. Trevor-Battye in "Camping In Crete," niludes to the slender walsts of the Cretan men:

One point about the figures of these men, he says, as of all the mountain vilingers, is the extreme similiness of their waists, which in some cases are almost wasplike. It is interesting to observo that this has niwnys been s Cretan characteristic, for the figures on the frescoes and vases in the Minoan section of the museum in Cundln (e. g., the famous "Cup Bearer") have the same remarkable slenderness of wnist.

He is not sure whether this slim walst is natural or whether produced by tight belting.

ROBERSON GETS JUDICIAL APPOINTMENT.

It was learned here last Saturday that Gov. McCreary had handed to Judge J. M. Roberson the commission as Circuit Judge of the Letcher-Pike district, to succeed Judge J. F. Butier, who has been serving on the bench since 1912. The appointment was the result of the annulling, through contest proceedings, of the Circuit Judge's race in 1912. Butier was the republican nominee, and Roberson the democratic nominee. According to the returns Butier was elected. Judge Roberson tiled contest proceedings, alleglng fraud, intlmidation, etc., in the Pike Circuit Court, and special Judge Layman, of Elizabethtown, presided at the hearing in December, 1913. The circuit court annulied the election. saying fraudulent means had been employed by both sides in the election. The Court of Appeals at Frankfort upheld this opinion last week, and the Governor's appointment followed Saturday. This is the second time Gov. McCreary has favored Judge Roberson with an appointment to this otilce, he having served the remainder Judge A. J. Kirk's term when the district was divided.

There are at the present time about 2,000 consolidated schools in the United States. Massachusetts, Ohio and Indiana have made the most rapid progress along these lines and it will e noticed that these States have made the greatest improvements on their roads. According to the statistics of the agricultural department, there was expended in 1899, $22,116 for the conveyance of pupils to the consolidated schools, but in 1908 the expenditures amounted to $292,213. In Indiana the expenditure for this purpose in 1904 amounted to $86,000, while in $290,000 was expended for this pur-

Why is it that Kentucky cannot have equal facilities by demanding and insisting that we have better roads? i make these suggestions hoping that some one may become interested that has power to take proper steps in a way to better the attendance in the common schools of our State, as nonattendance is the greatest obstacle that we have to overcome in our present system.
